Editorial

For many years, this journal has been a vehicle for the delivery of timely and thoughtful information and opinion on the many issues that involve the academic and professional communities. I would like to join all the members of the Sabaragamuwa University Journal in thanking the Prof, D.A.M.De Silva, past editors-in-chief for their service to our readers. Under the guidance of former editor of the SUSL journal, the SUSL journal achieved the excellence in academic publishing.

This is both an exciting and a challenging point in one's academic life taking up chief editorship of the academic journal, especially multidisciplinary in nature. First and foremost my very special thanks go to the former vice chancellor Professor Chandana P Udawaththa, for introducing me to the journal and trust for better future. Special thanks go to the present vice chancellor professor M. Sunil Shantha for keeping me as a position of editor and providing me the opportunity to continue the service. I also would like to thank those who served on the journal staff and its editorial board, and particularly the reviewers for providing the support and feedback necessary to find, develop and publish high-quality material. My thanks also go to Dr. A.S.M Aslam, Director, CRKD for their valuable insights and comment to make this work a success. I really want to thank Mr. Prasad C Iddamalgoda for the excellent job he has done which immensely supported me to complete this issue. Finally, I offer my thanks to both readers and authors, who have helped us by citing articles from our journal.

Articles of the current issue touch the areas of fundamental rights perspective, rural tourism, and tourism under military, sociology, violence and modernity.
